Sobre a intervenção do orador internacional: Most companies are increasing their investment in cybersecurity products and services. Last year, the total spending rose up to 114 billion USD, which represents a 12,4 percent increase over the previous year. Gartner predicts up to 8,7% growth this year. We are approaching Industry 4.0 and new solutions that we implement in the ICS environment, such as IoT and "smart equipment", which generate new vulnerabilities, risks and problems for the CISO. When we invest in new solutions thinking that they will solve our problems, are we creating new ones? Can we decrease risk by just investing more money in cybersecurity? Or should we look for other solutions?

Sobre o orador internacional: Andrzej Kozłowski is the editor-in-chief of the biggest portal on cybersecurity and information warfare: Cyberdefence24.pl. Alongside with his work as a journalist he is a lecturer at the University of Lodz, Collegium Civitas in Warsaw and European Academy of Diplomacy (EAD). In 2016 he successfully defended his PhD dissertation entitled: "The Security Policy of the United States in Cyberspace (1993-2012). Comparative Analysis". He has written more than 15 research papers and participated in more than 30 conferences on the prestigious academia such as: King's College, University of Manchester, Goethe University Frankfurt.
