

Legal Shots

The transfer of undertakings regime in the succession of the provision of security and surveillance services.

COURT ALERT: Supreme Court of Justice concludes that there is no transfer of economic unit in private security and surveillance services.

According to the Portuguese Supreme Court of Justice there is no transfer of establishment when a company ceases to provide surveillance and security services to a particular client, following the award (by the client) of such services to another company, without any employee or any other resources, skills or organisational instruments having been transferred to it, which could constitute an "economic unit".

Decision available here.

Meet our Team:

